DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Applicant amended claim 1 such that the claim now further includes the limitation “selectively activating or deactivating the carriers in the first frequency band for providing a hot-start capability of the ISDN-transmission.” First of all, since the specification fails to explain what it is except that it is known from ISDN, the “hot-start capability” is understood as an activation of communication in ISDN “occurring a deactivation without any intervening loopback or powering action and without any change in cable characteristic for a metallic pair cable transmission”. See ETS 300 297 (1995), page 25. Although the term “warm-start” is used in the ETS 300 297 instead of “hot-start” the two terms are considered to refer to the same capability because each of them is defined relative to “a cold start” capability.

The only supporting description for this new limitation is found at page 6, lines 11-13 in the specification of the present application, basically repeating the limitation as follows; The hot-start capability known from ISDN can be achieved by selective activation or deactivation of the lower carriers. This one-sentence description, however, does not teach how the activation or deactivation of carriers achieves the above-defined hot start capability. In other words, it is not understood at all what role the activation or deactivation of carriers plays in providing the hot-start capability. Therefore, it is concluded that the subject matter of providing a hot-start capability of the ISDN-transmission is not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Dependent claims 2-8 are rejected for the same reason as they include the non-enabling subject matter of claim 1.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

“Integrated Services Digital Network (ISDN); Access digital section for ISDN basic access” ETS 300 297, May 1995.

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
